Society for the History of Women in the Americas (SHAW)

NEWSLETTER, SEPTEMBER 2023

News:

Job opportunity: University of Sussex, 1.0 Full Time, Permanent

The History Department at the University of Sussex is seeking a permanent Lecturer in American History (pre-1900). The closing date for applications is 17 September 2023. Further details can be found via the following link: https://www.jobs.ac.uk/job/DBQ080/lecturer-in-american-history-pre-1900 BrANCA (British Association of Nineteenth-Century Americanists) have launched an exciting new mentoring scheme for Early Career Researchers and postgrads in the UK and Europe working on the long American C19 (both American and C19 broadly conceived. In this scheme, a member of the Steering Committee will read over and provide detailed feedback on a piece of writing (up to 8,000 words) that will in future be submitted to a peer-reviewed journal. The aim will be to make the article as robust as possible; and to expand the network of readers for it. If you wish to submit some work under this scheme, please contact Ed Sugden (edward.sugden@kcl.ac.uk) in the first instance.

Call for Papers: BrANCA Biennial Symposium 2023: "Refuse/Refusal"

To mark their 10th anniversary, BrANCA wish to welcome scholars working on all periods before the long nineteenth century's end, including Early Americanists, as well as Early Modernists and 18th century specialists working on topics relating to the Americas. The theme is 'Refuse/Refusal', leaning into the different meanings of "refuse" in its noun and verb forms. The symposium will be held on Friday 1 - Saturday 2 December 2023 at the University of Bristol, UK. The deadline for submissions is 8 September. Please send no more than 200 words about your panel, and no more than 200 words about each paper, along with names and contact details of panellists to Erin Forbes (e.forbes@bristol.ac.uk) who will distribute them to the rest of the steering committee. More information at http://www.branca.org.uk/symposium22-905847.html

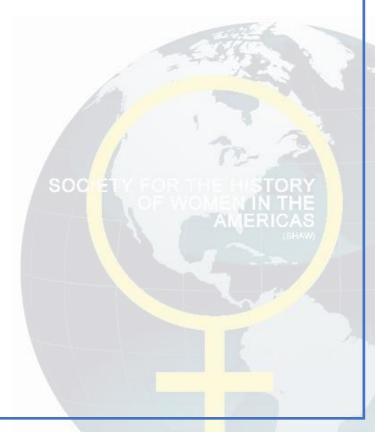

News continued:

Call for Papers: American History Research Seminar, University of Oxford

The American History Research Seminar at the RAI, Oxford, is seeking submissions from scholars who would like the opportunity to workshop a work-in-progress piece among the academic community at the RAI. Applicants should plan to either present a 45-minute paper in person at the seminar, or to pre-circulate a paper of 10,000-15,000 words (including footnotes).

The seminar will take place on Tuesdays at 4pm in Michaelmas (10th October – 28th November) and Hilary Terms (16th January – 5th March).

To apply, please submit a 300-word abstract and a 100-word bio to emily.brady@rai.ox.ac.uk and <a href="mailto:grace.mailto:grac

You are receiving this newsletter because you are/were a member of the Society for the History of Women in the Americas. If you wish to unsubscribe from this newsletter, please email g.johnson6@newcastle.ac.uk. Please send notices of other announcements, calls for papers, prizes and competitions, and details of recent relevant publications to g.johnson6@newcastle.ac.uk.

SHAW Steering Committee 22-23:

CHAIR

Dr Marie Molloy

Marie is a Senior Lecturer in American History at Manchester Metropolitan University. Her research examines race, class, and gender in the nineteenth-century American South. Her first monograph examined Single, White Slaveholding Women in the Nineteenth-Century American South (University of South Carolina Press, 2018) and her co-edited book with Dr Laura Sandy, The Civil War and Slavery Reconsidered: Negotiating the Peripheries was published in 2019. She is currently working on a book length project on adultery across the colour line in the slaveholding south. Dr. Molloy is a passionate advocate of equality, diversity, and inclusion, and in her role as the History, Politics and Philosophy Lead for Schools and Widening Participation, she has organised several conferences and events for secondary schools on these themes. She is also book review editor for Women's History Review. m.molloy@mmu.ac.uk

SECRETARY

Dr Mara Keire, University of Oxford.

TREASURER

Dr Sinead McEneaney

is a Senior Lecturer and Staff Tutor in the Department of History at the Open University, Milton Keynes. She has spent most of her career teaching US and broader American history, especially around the themes of race, gender and political change in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Broadly speaking, she is a historian of the period we like to call 'The Sixties', with a focus on developments in the United States. Her current project considers life writing by women activists within the Civil Rights and Black Power movements. How does writing one's own story allow women to assert control over, and subvert, narratives of the past? How do these women shape their stories for a public audience? How do these stories act as extensions of protest and activism? She first joined SHAW in 2011, and became a member of the steering group in 2013. She has held the positions of Secretary and Chair, and is now the Treasurer. sinead.mceneaney@open.ac.uk

EARLY CAREER REPRESENTATIVE

Dr Emma Day

Emma is a Research Fellow in American History at the Rothermere American Institute, University of Oxford. Specialising in the histories of gender, sexuality, activism, and disease in the twentieth century United States, she completed her PhD in History at Oxford in 2020 and her first book, In Her Hands: Women's Fight Against AIDS in the United States is forthcoming from the University of California Press in August 2023. Her work has also appeared in Modern American History, Theatre Annual: A Journal of Theatre and Performance of the Americas, Working Papers in Critical Disaster Studies: Historical Approaches to Covid-19, and the Washington Post. She is the early career representative of SHAW and lives in London with her partner and whippet. emma.day@rai.ox.ac.uk / Twitter: @emmaroseday

SOCIAL MEDIA AND WEBSITE EDITOR

Gabrielle Tymków

Gabrielle is an MA History graduate from the University of Plymouth, where she specialised in African American History of the early 20th century. In 2020, Gabrielle was the recipient of the Maureen Attrill Bursary from the The Box Museum, looking at the history of the Plymouth Porcelain collection and its connection to colonialism in the late 1700s. Gabrielle is currently the ceramics technician at the University of Plymouth and continues her studies as an independent researcher. gabrielle.tymkow@plymouth.ac.uk

POSTGRADUATE REPRESENTATIVE

Genevieve Johnson-Smith

Genevieve is a PhD candidate in the history department at Newcastle University, working on a project around fugitive abolitionism, emancipatory activism and anti-slavery radicalism in the UK, particularly Wales. She has carried out extensive research on forced and coerced Indigenous sterilisation and remains dedicated to this very important work. She contributed a chapter to the collective Sacred Bundles Unborn (2021) and has also contributed her research and writing to the BBC history/comedy podcast You're Dead To Me. She is the postgraduate representative of SHAW and a member of the Northern Bridge EDI group.

g.johnson6@newcastle.ac.uk / Twitter: @GenevieveJS_

OFFICERS WITHOUT PORTFOLIO

Prof. Kate Dossett

Kate is Professor of American History at the University of Leeds where she researches and teaches Black cultural histories, women and gender history. Her most recent book is Radical Black Theatre in the New Deal (2020).

k.m.dossett@leeds.ac.uk

Prof. Hélène Charlery

Hélène is an Associate Professor at the University of Toulouse-Jean Jaurès (France). Her research focuses on the representation and staging of gender and race identities in contemporary American films and television series, with an emphasis on intersectionality and black feminist film theories. Her research has also recently addressed Ava DuVernay's civic and artistic activism in films, television series and documentaries.

For any general SHAW enquiries please email shawsociety@gmail.com or visit the SHAW website at https://shawsociety.net.